Dr Hill is a prominent educator on the world scene as the summary of his career below indicates. His current responsibilities place him at the forefront of one of the more significant educational and political initiatives in Australian history. Dr Hill will discuss the policies and objectives of ACARA, its current programs and projects and its planned future activities.

Dr Peter Hill, ACARA Chief Executive Officer

Dr Peter Hill is the CEO of the Australian Curriculum, Assessment and Reporting Authority.

In his previous role, Peter was a Senior Advisor to the Hong Kong Examinations and Assessment Authority and an educational consultant on projects in Australia, Canada, the Middle East, the United Kingdom and the USA. From 2004 to 2007, Peter was Secretary General of the Hong Kong Examinations and Assessment Authority where he played a key role in developing and implementing changes in curriculum, assessment and certification in a major reform.

Peter began his career in education as a geography teacher in London, before moving to Australia in 1970. Since then he has held positions across the globe including Teacher and Research Officer, Superintendent of Research and Assistant Director (Planning) in Western Australia, Chairperson and Chief Executive of the Victorian Curriculum and Assessment Board, Chief General Manager of the Department of School Education in Victoria, Professor of Education, The University of Melbourne, and Director of Research and Development, National Centre on Education and the Economy, Washington D.C.

Peter was a Board Member of the ACER, the Australian Research Council, a Trustee of the National Centre on Education and the Economy, USA and Chair of the Board of Directors, Australian Principals Centre.
